

Welcome Back!

BARRY.

BARRY: Fuches?

FUCHES: Hey, buddy. I'm outside. Open up.

BARRY: Are you here?

FUCHES: So this Noho Hank guy wakes me up last night, and says you and your mark were hugging?

BARRY: They saw that.

FUCHES: Oh yeah...

BARRY: Look, look. last night something really cool happened, okay?

FUCHES: Okay.

BARRY: I followed Ryan to this theater where he was taking an acting class and I ended up doing a scene with him from 'True Romance.'

FUCHES: True Romance is a movie.

BARRY: Yeah, it's LA theater so I guess all the scenes they do are from movies. Point is, I was really good and I hung out with all of them.

FUCHES: Them?

BARRY: The acting class. They're super nice!

FUCHES: The whole class? Including the guy you were supposed to burn?

BARRY: Ryan? Madison. Yeah, he's a great dude and I don't know, they just made me feel really good about myself. You know? And you know how you and I talk all the time about my purpose?

FUCHES: You think acting could be your purpose?

BARRY: I don't know. I just feel really motivated right now, like, it made feel really good!

FUCHES: Okay... but what about what we do together, Barry?

actually make a living at it so most of them just have day jobs so I just figured I would do night hits.

FUCHES: Whoa. Whoa. Whoa. Whoa. Sit. Sit. Okay. Now Barry... acting is a very face-forward type of job. It's in direct conflict to being someone who kills people. You wanna have a hobby or something, you could take up... painting? Well, Hitler painted. John Wayne Gacy, painted! It's a good solid hobby. Never got in the way of what they were doing.

BARRY: They're professional actors and they're the real deal and they say I got something...

FUCHES: No. I get it. I get it. But I think you gotta think this thing through. I mean, do you really wanna go out there and burn a guy and have him say, "Hey! There's the guy from the chicken commercial!"

BARRY: I don't know if I'd do commercials...

FUCHES: Barry? When you decided to do this for a living you closed the door on doing anything else. You're a killer, Barry. You kill the bad guys.

BARRY: Yeah, but this Ryan guy wasn't a bad guy_

FUCHES: No, no, no_

BARRY: He gave me a book_

FUCHES: Stop thinking. Kill Ryan. These Chechens are the scariest people I've ever worked with and they're talking about taking off you this job.

BARRY: Off the job?

FUCHES: I'm sorry but I don't feel like dying over some wannabe actor.

BARRY: Yeah. No. Yeah..

FUCHES: This is what you do. This is all you do. Understood.

BARRY: Okay. Good.