

“YOU” Dinner scene (Joe & Love) S3, Ep 10

J. Smells amazing.

L. It's roast chicken.

J. Where's Henry?

L. He's asleep.

J. I'm going to check on him.

L. No. Sit.

J. Taste amazing as ever.

L. I'm a good cook.

J. You are. You really are.

L. And I'm great in bed, pretty, funny, devoted wife and mom.

J. It's all true.

L. Hey. Did you check out twitter today? A news guy was murdered, Ryan Goodwin. I was like where do I know him from. So, I googled him, and he's your bosses ex husband. I saw him at the library thing, where I met her, Maryanne. She was lovely, stunning actually.

J. Love —

L. Do you love her? I just want the truth. Oh. Did you ever actually love me?

J. From the moment I saw you, you knew this. I would do anything for you.

L. I know that you cheated on me and you lied.

J. Ok, can we just —

L. You made me feel like you really saw me. Like you were perfectly happy. You made me feel like I needed to protect you. You got so upset killing objectively horrible people. So I thought he's sensitive, I can do this for him.

J. I don't remember you asking.

L. And then I come to find out that you are happy to just murder for a different women. Meanwhile, here I am doing it for you. A teenager, someone innocent.

J. Yeah, right. He's just a kid, who you were having an affair with. We can do this if you are willing to admit that you haven't been perfectly happy either. We have both made mistakes. I have made some big ones. And, I'm sorry, Love. I never wanted to hurt you. I tried, and I know that you've been trying too. But it didn't work and now we can be honest about that and deal with this like two adults.

L. Meaning what?

J. We don't have to do anything impulsive.

L. What is that supposed to mean?

J. James. James. What you did to him when he tried to leave. Your mother knew and she told me.

L. My mother is a malicious bitch.

J. All I'm saying is that we can part ways amicably. Be there for Henry, support him as coparents and give each other the chance to be happy. Love, I want a divorce.

(Henry cries)

L. I'm going to go check on him —

J. Let me get —

L. No, I'll check on him. I'll get him.

(Love leaves the room)

L. Henry settled down. You look like you're going to throw up.

J. Well, I just said the D-word to my wife.

L. Okay, yeah, that's fair. Look, Joe. I don't like feeling like this.

J. I'm so sorry. I —

L. No. No. You're right. You know, I always thought that if I did everything right, life would turn out the way it's supposed to. Doesn't that seem reasonable? I mean, like with James.. I took care of him, doesn't it seem reasonable that he would want to be with me when he got better? But.. Here's what I need you to know about James. My mom was right. I did. I did kill him. But, I didn't mean to. That was my first time using it and the dosage was too high when ingested.

J. What dosage was too high.

L. Aconite. It's a paralytic. I just wanted to stop him. Keep him in one place so we could talk it through.

J. You wanted to paralyze him?

L. Exactly. Yeah. Temporarily. Now, you don't have to worry. This time I'm letting it absorb through the skin. Do I need to point out that none of this would be happening if you hadn't grabbed a weapon. No one will ever love you like I love you, Joe. It's something to think about while you're lying there.
